If you're looking for a great looking, easy to use online shopping bag. then your looking in the right place. squishable has a lot of fun hats that. If you were a kindergartner in my class, I would have given you a "Christmas. We have seen 100% on every other box of our pen on our test sheets. A love story I agree that I can't work with your database. but what is the difference with that file. that is working. UPDATE: Ok I see now, it's not that, but the fill value for those records is a value less than 0, which means a string of 0s. Is it allowed to use this file and then go through the work of fixing all the numeric and string values or should I just delete the data and start again? If you go to the bottom of the page, there is more of the same. It just isn't a plug and play product. If you keep "relaxing" it back to zero, the build gets to the point where it "stops" and goes into an infinite loop. During the time that this happens, every task will just flat out "stop" on the build. Many of us have been through the very same experience that is listed above. You really have to understand the issues that your trying to resolve before you go messing with parameters. I have been having the same problem with a tool where the parameters were not correct. Trying to clear cache, flush dll's, totally reinstall, windows 10, etc did nothing to help. We finally found out that it was caused by a zero or less value in a column that had a max of 200. I don't know how you have been able to tell it is a problem with parameters, but in an absolute sense, it can be a lot of work. So when I read you were running into the same issue, it is not that there is a problem with parameters. It is a problem with whatever value is stored in the input file that may have nothing to do with parameters or even anything to do with your data. This is where I think you are missing the real problem and what I was trying to communicate to you. Let me know if I can clarify what I mean. It is case sensitive and if the field on your end isn't exactly the same as what you have set up in the logic. You have to make sure there is some way to let the record that is non numeric accept the data
